Dear Frank,

It was a pleasure to see you again the other night at the dinner at the Carnegie Endowment. I found your comments to be as sparkling as always, even when--on occasion--I don't agree with them. That feature of dissent never has stopped you in the past and I am sure it won't hurt you in the future either.

I read your articles regularly and find them quite stimulating. I hope we have a chance to set down and talk again about a variety of issues. If you ever are really bored, I would be glad to buy you lunch--or even just give you a cup of coffee. When you are ready give me a call

Sincerely,
